Truck Blaze Kills Driver

R. J. WALDRON, TRAVERSE CITY COCA-COLA DRIVER KILLED IN ACCIDENT

Robert J. Waldron, 21, of Traverse City, driver for the Coca-cola Co. of Traverse City, was fatally burned Monday morning when he was pinned under his truck in an accident five miles south of Charlevoix on US31.

Boersma reported to sheriff's office that Waldron's truck left the highway, crashed through some trees and overturned, immediately catching fire. Boersma tried to free Waldron from the blazing vehicle, then notified Mederick Waffle, who lives nearby, who summoned the Charlevoix fire department and sherriff's officers.

Waldron was born in Traverse City on Dec. 13, 1925 and was graduated from Traverse City High school in 1944. He participated in 25 missions over Japan as a gunner on a B29 and was discharged from the army airforce in 1945. He was to have been married next month.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Waldron; a brother, Richard and a sister, Marjorie, at home; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Waldron and Nels Oleson, all of Traverse City, and a great-grandmother, Mrs. Amelia Goffer of California.

NEW LONG-DISTANCE CABLE BURIED

Michigan Bell Telephone company construction crews currently are laying a 130-mile twin cable between Big Rapids and Petoskey. A giant, 80-ton cable train, above, plows the new circuits into the ground as it lumbers across fields and through forests. The project greatly expands toll facilities to Northern Michigan.

Marvin has received his collie, Lady of the Night, and is very proud of her. James will get a six weeks old pup early in December.

ANTRIM BOYS ATTEND STATE 4-H CONSERVATION CAMP

Nine Antrim County 4-H Club boys returned Saturday morning from a week's stay at the Department of Conservation Headquarters, Higgins Lake, where they attend the annual State 4-H Conservation Camp.

This camp is probably the most outstanding camp of its kind held anywhere during the year. Boys from all parts of the State attend this camp. Throughout the week the boys are given a through schooling in all phases of Conservation. The week is spent learning these things through experience. They fight with modern equipment against fire, make game count, soils studies and other wildlife and Conservation activities out in the fields, woods and streams.

They also have organized group competition and recreation.

Delegates are chosen annually from the membership of those clubs throughout the county participating 4-H Conservation activities. Antrim County is the highest in the State in the number of boys and girls enrolled in this work and has been so far many years. All delegates chosen are fortunate in being able to attend the camp and are enthusiastic in its praise.

Those delegates attending this year's camp were: Alba, Norbert Glidden and Wayne Miller: Alden, Dwight Lockaman; Bellaire, Clifford Marshall: Ellsworth, Ted Essenburg, Versil Hoffman and Wilford Janson; Mancelona, Bob Stewart and Jack Smigowski.

Beer Ceiling

The Massachusetts Bay Colony put a ceiling price on beer in 1634. According to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, the price was frozen at "one penny a quart at the most."

Water Softener

To soften water for washing white cotton or linens, dissolve half a teaspoon of washing soda in each gallon of water. For other fabrics, dissolve one to two teaspoons of borax in each gallon of water. To get a soft lather in which to wash flannels, add a couple of teaspoons of glycerin to the water in the washing machine.

Aluminum in Transport

Experiments with aluminum in marine construction were begun almost as soon as the first aluminum sheet and plate were turned out. In the field of railroad transportation, aluminum appeared nearly a half century ago, being first used as turned out. From the start, of course, aluminum was a feature in the aircraft industry, not only for airplanes but also for some of the first lighter-than-air craft. Count Zeppelin, for example, built his first airship with aluminum.

Largest Single Cable Installation In Michigan Bell History

One of the Michigan Bell Telephone company's most ingenious devices for constructing long-distance lines an 80-ton, giant "cable train" is rooting its way from Big Rapids to Petoskey 130 miles away and slipping two large cables into the ground as it lumbers along.

The project, largest single cable installation in Michigan Bell history, will cost the company $3,655,000 by the time it is finished next year. However, it will greatly expand the telephone facilities linking lumbering, mining, and resort areas of the state with Detroit, Grand Rapids, and Chicago.

Single cable matching in size the present toll cable between Grand Rapids and Big Rapids will be installed between those two cities. Then double-capacity lines will be available all the way from the Upper Peninsula to major toll centers of Southern Michigan.

The Upper Peninsula will connect with the new cables through an existing submarine cable crossing the straits at St. Ignace and and continuing as aerial cable to Petoskey.

Buried below the frost line, the cables will provide storm-proof long-distance service. The present open-wire leads, which sometimes are broken by falling trees and heavy loads of ice, will be dismantled.

A large, central section of the twin-cables between Big Rapids and Charlevoix probably will carry its first telephone conversation in December of this year. By the middle of next year, the remainder of the cables will have been completed to Petoskey Traverse City, and Grand Rapids.

Branch cables on poles will go into Leroy, Tustin, Manton, Fife Lake, Williamsburg, Alden, Bellaire, Central Lake, and Ellsworth.

Initially, the cables will provide about 350 channels for telephone messages. This number can be increased several times through use of "carrier equipment" if future demands warrant.

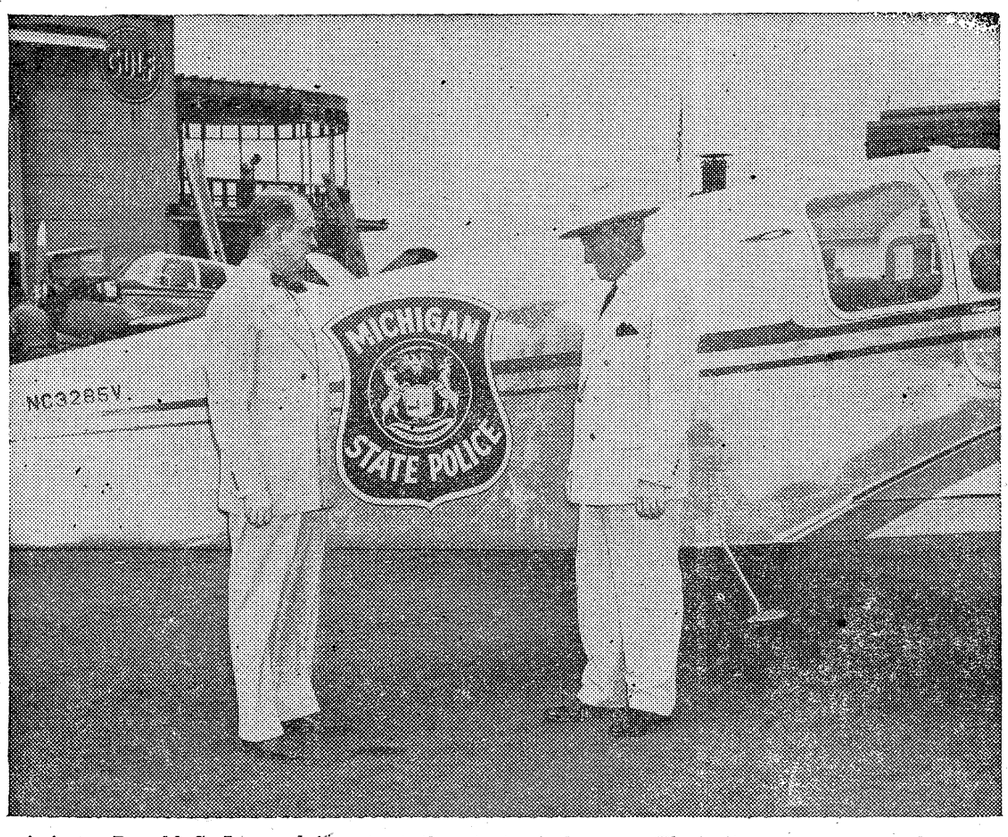

Michigan Bell construction crews have cleared a 16-foot right-of-way across the countryside in preparation for the actual cable installation. The cable train which buries the cables down the center of the right-of-way consists of eight main units. The units include four caterpillar tractors, "rooter," burying plow, cable reels, bulldozer.

As the train pushes its way through woods, swamps, and fields, it pulls the rooter extending three and a half feet into the ground. The rooter can exert a pressure of five tons as it smashes its way though thick roots and pushes rocks out of the way.

The plow, which follows the rooter, has a hole in its tip. Into this opening the two cables are threaded and pulled through as the train moves forward. A bulldozer brings up the rear and pushes dirt thrown up by the plow back into the trench.

Approximately 130 small buildings will be built at regular intervals along the route of the cable to house "repeater" equipment. This apparatus boosts telephone voice currents reduced to a whisper by resistance of wire in the cables.

A New Visitor at Michigan Airports

Load Lines

On every ship there's a painted mark which shows how low in the water she may safely be while carrying a full load But that load varies depending on where and when the ship is to sail. If she's heading for tropical waters, where the seas are calm, the mark is high. Similarly, she can be loaded more deeply in summer than in winter because less allowance is necessary for storms. There's also a mark for fresh water sailing since buoyancy of a ship is less in fresh water than in salt.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Labor Law Upheld by Court; Palestine Partition Plan Told; Better Cotton Crop Forecast

Released by Western Newspaper Union

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

TAFT-HARTLEY:
Constitutional

Round one went to the Taft-Hartley labor law when a Fort Worth federal district court judge upheld the constitutionality of those provisions of the statute which require labor unions to file affidavits that their officers are not Communists.

Judge T. W. Davidson ruled that the non-Communist provisions were legal, consistent and proper and that the Oil Workers International union (CIO) had not complied with the law, hence did not have recourse to the national labor relations board.

The test case, which all unions were watching closely, came up when a regional NLRB director refused to count ballots in an election of workers at Wichita Falls, Tex., because, as court evidence later disclosed, the union had not made a non-Communist declaration to the NLRB.

Phillip Murray's CIO chose to attack the Taft-Hartley law through the non-Communist affidavit provisions, not because it was afraid to make the required declarations, but because that particular facet of the statute was considered its most vulnerable point.

Many unbiased labor authorities agree that those provisions are a weakness in the law, more because of the adverse public opinion that could be aroused against them than because of any imputed unconstitutionality.

In the meantime, the CIO could almost certainly be counted upon to appeal the case to the supreme court if necessary.

COTTON CROP:
Lift That Bale

In the midwest, farmers and others were worrying, and with good reason, about the throttled corn crop, but in the South, cotton growers were receiving assurances that they probably would be counting quite a few more bales this season than they did in 1946, an unusually poor year.

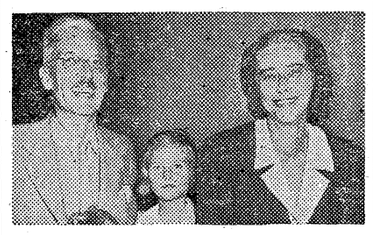

Estimates by the department of agriculture put the 1947 cotton crop at 11,849,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight. That compared with an 11,844,000-bale forecast a month earlier.

Last year's disappointing crop measured only 8,640,000 bales, far below the 10-year (1936-1945) average of 12,390,000.

Increased acreage this year accounted for much of the increase. Last season only 17,639,000 acres were harvested, as contrasted with 21,143,000 this year.

Condition of the crop on September 1, the department reported, was 73 per cent of normal, compared with 68 per cent a year ago. Moreover, the quantity of cotton ginned from this year's crop before September 1 totaled 647,391 bales, compared with 532,664 before the same date in 1946.

HEADLINERS

IN NEW YORK . . . Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg, former chancellor of Austria, a Nazi prisoner throughout the war, his wife and daughter, Sissy, arrived from Europe for a visit in the U. S. (See above.)

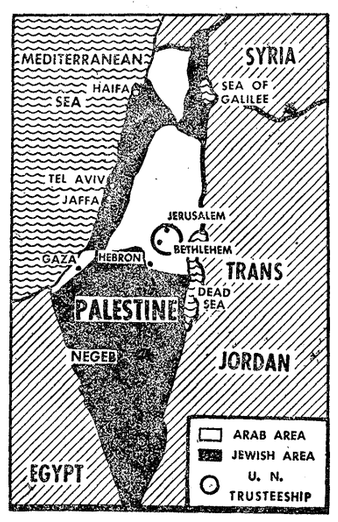

IN LAKE COUNTY, Ind. . . . Judge William J. Murray dolefully told the Lake county council that it would be useless to bring an injunction against the offenders in this case, convinced council members they should grant him $3,000 to get the ants out of his courtroom.

IN ATLANTIC CITY . . . Barbara Jo Walker, 21, of Memphis, (Miss America of 1947) turned a cold, cute shoulder on Hollywood blandishments, stoutly affirmed she would complete her college education, then marry John Hummel, medical student, who knew her when.

IN COLLINSVILLE, Ill. . . . Pvt. James Belk, 17, placed a bet on a 10-to-1 shot in the fourth race, promptly dropped dead when the nag won by a nose.

IN BASS RIVER, Mass. . . . Mrs. Mabel Gleason of Boston passed away of a heart attack while taking her daily swim at the age of 84.

Holy Land Zones

Under the U.N. Palestine committee's plan, the country would be partitioned into Arab and Jewish states, both of which would become fully independent on September 1, 1949, on condition that they sign an agreement for economic union. Circular area indicates Jerusalem area that would be put under U.N. trusteeship.

PARTITION:
The Equation

While Ben Hecht was crying revenge in New York and Jewish refugees were being shuttled from pillar to post, from Palestine to Germany, on British ships, a United Nations committee on Palestine was quietly investigating the Holy Land to see what it could see.

What the committee visualized was simply a reduction of the equation to its component parts: Palestine should be partitioned into Arab and Jewish states (see map).

At the last count, there were about 1,200,000 Arabs and 625,000 Jews living in the Holy Land—a two-to-one proportion. If the partitioning were carried out with no population shift, at least 416,000 Arabs would be living in the Jewish state, along with 500,000 Jews. In the Arab state, the Jewish population would number about 8,000.

This problem of "Minorities" was listed by the U. N. committee as the most serious difficulty confronting the partition plan.

Jerusalem, which would be a kind of "free city" under U.N. jurisdiction, contains an approximately equal number of Jews and Arabs—100,000 to 106,000, respectively.

Concerning the burning issue of Jewish immigration into Palestine, the committee had little to say, at least in its initial report. Perhaps 200,000 outside Jews would be admitted during a proposed transitional period before partitioning is completed.

To the million or more European Jews clamoring for admittance to the Holy Land, this was something less than an answer to their prayers.

SLOW GAIN:
Russia Lags

When Russia and her seven satellites embargoed the Marshall plan for mutual European self-help, U. S. economists commented that they had done so at the cost of lower living standards in the Soviet areas.

That opinion was partially upheld recently in a report released by U. S. government researchers who figured out that western Europe is making a quicker postwar recovery than is Soviet-dominated eastern Europe. Both areas, of course, still fall far short of normal peacetime trade patterns.

Comparative trade figures for the two spheres appeared to bear out the conclusion arrived at in the U. S. report.

They indicated that 1946 exports from 12 countries of western Europe attained 49.3 per cent of the 1938 rate, while the eight eastern nations, including Russia, came back only to 39.6 of the 1938 norm.

The economists did not explain how 1946 trade could have been affected by the Marshall plan, which was not then in existence, unless they assumed that a general trend toward self-help and mutual economic aid, crystallized this year by U. S. Secretary of State Marshall, prevailed in western Europe even in 1946.

FREE PRESS:
World Wide

In 1789, the first congress of the United States wrote an amendment to the constitution in which this precept was laid down: "Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of speech or of the press."

It was a noble idea, the bedrock of all liberty. But, in 1947, when nations of the world were as closely associated and as irritable as two families in a three-room apartment, was it enough?

The U. S. state department thought not, and, after due deliberation, made public a proposed treaty which would guarantee a free flow of information among all nations and peoples.

Crystalizing the ideas of American press, radio and motion picture leaders on international freedom of information, Richard J. Finnegan, publisher of the Chicago Times, prepared a tentative draft of the proposed treaty.

It says that correspondents of all media of public information should be allowed to enter and travel freely in other countries, with the same holding true for foreign correspondents in the U. S. There should be no censorship, beyond that dictated by the necessity for maintaining national security. An international commission would investigate and report any treaty violations.

Although a significant and definitive part of the broad U. S. policy to promote global understanding, the treaty undoubtedly will have rough going if and when it hits totalitarian waters. Realists well might wonder how soon, if ever, the voice of the first amendment would be heard across the world.

CONGRESS:
Nothing Special

Despite previous muted comments on the part of some political figures to the effect that a special session of congress perhaps ought to be called before January to deal with the rapidly worsening European situation, Sen. Robert Taft, Republican figurehead, slapped an effective damper on any such planning.

There was "certainly no reason for a special session on domestic affairs," he said, and added pointedly that information on foreign aid would not be ready for congressional action before January 1, the date congress is scheduled to reconvene.

He echoed what well might be the generally prevailing sentiment among the American people when he said that congress was not sufficiently advised to be able to act on the foreign situation.

Meanwhile, embarking on his western tour to sound out his position as a possible presidential candidate, Taft listed some of the major problems congress would take up in its next session:

1. Public Housing.
2. General tax reduction.
3. Universal military training.
4. Health legislation.
5. Possible British loan.
6. Reciprocal trade treaties.

UNEMPLOYMENT:
Vet Allowances

Unemployed veterans of World War II and those self-employed have been paid more than 2.5 billion dollars in allowances since the fall of 1944, according to Veterans' administration.

However, that enormous sum was distributed among only half of the nation's 14.5 million veterans, the other half having received no readjustment payments of any kind. Fewer than eight in every 100 have claimed all the allowances to which they are entitled under the G.I. bill of rights.

Unemployment payments were made to an average of 750,000 veterans during July, 1947, as compared with a weekly peak of 1.8 million during that month in 1946.

Warns of War

Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, head of the war department personnel board, told the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention in Cleveland that war is a "definitive possibility" for which this country must be prepared.

June Pay Hits High

Bureau of labor statistics has reported that the average factory worker made more money last June than during any other month in history.

Responsible for the increase was the fact that hourly wage boosts, won by many unions earlier in the year, showed up in full on June paychecks, raising the average weekly wage to $49.37, an increase of about a dollar over the May figure.

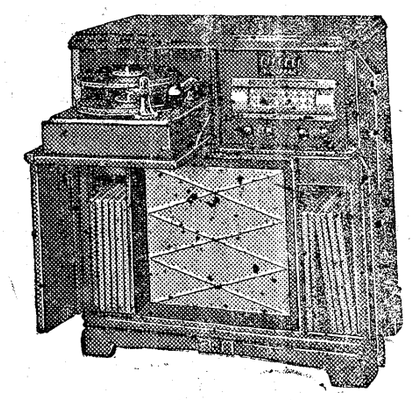

New Cancer Serum Holds Hope for Afflicted

A new Russian serum, known as KR, will be used to treat three American cancer victims for the first time in this country, the experiment to begin late in October. Medical authorities, however, caution strongly that no claim is being made for a cancer cure.

According to Dr. William M. Malisoff, director of the Longevity Research foundation in New York, where KR has been studied intensively, the serum has acted successfully on mice but there is no assurance that it will do the same for humans.

"Any implication that this constitutes a cure for humans would cause untold distress," he said. "It should be made clear that the results with mice are preliminary and may be inconclusive." However, a few humans treated previously have shown improvement.

THE BIBLE TODAY

International Uniform Sunday School Lesson

By LOUIE D. NEWTON, D.D.

SCRIPTURE: Proverbs 3:5-7; 4:23; 6:16-19; 9:10; 14:34; 15:1; 16:18; 21:3; 22:1; 27:1, 2; 28:1; 29:18; James 4:17.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Proverbs 16: 1-9.

Guidance From Proverbs

Lesson for September 21, 1947

OUR study of Sunday's lesson centers about the idea of goodness, which is a rather trite-sounding theme, but very vital, I assure you, and quite interesting. The Scripture passages are all found in Proverbs, save one, and that from the very practical preacher of the New Testament, James, chapter 4, verse 17.

Dr. Newton

Perhaps you will find the passages from Proverbs as helpful and interesting as I did. It will require but two minutes to read them—Proverbs 3:5-7; 4:23; 6:16-19; 9:10; 14:34; 15:1; 16:18; 21:3; 22:1; 27:1, 2; 28:1; 29:18. And after you have devoted two minutes to the reading of these passages, you will have something to think about for the rest of the day, the week, all your life.

* * *

One Man's Experience

A VERY successful business man in Atlanta, a shoe manufacturer, was telling me his life story one day as we fished together at Homosassa, Fla. Finally, he said:

"Do you know the passage in the Bible that has meant most to me as a rule and guide for my faith and practice?"

I wondered what he would say. And then he quoted from Proverbs 3:5-7.

"Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths. Be not wise in thine own eyes; fear the Lord, and depart from evil."

* * *

The Essence of Goodness

WHAT is goodness? We talk about good men and bad men, good times and bad times, good luck and bad luck. Just what is goodness?

Jesus himself once said to a young man:

"There is none good but One, that is, God." Mark 10:18.

Goodness then, permit me to suggest, is what happens when God lives in us. We can never know goodness apart from God, try as we may. The essence of goodness, therefore, is found in that heart, in that life, that sincerely prays, "Thy will be done."

* * *

The Essence of Badness

GUIDANCE from these great Proverbs identifies the things that we are to shun as well as the things we are to do—the essence of badness as well as the essence of goodness. Here are the seven things that God hates—the seven qualities of heart that constitute the essence of badness:

"Haughty eyes, a lying tongue, hands that shed innocent blood, a heart that deliberately plans wickedness, feet which are swift in running to mischief, a false witness who utters lies, and one who sows discord among brethren."

Analyze these seven qualities of heart, and you have the explanation of the woes of the world. Many clever modern books toy with these deadly sins, trying to make them seem good, but no amount of decoration can atone for the heart that consistently entertains these cancers of hell.

* * *

The Individual and Society

I LIKE the impact of these Proverbs. They begin with the individual. They fruit in society. Individuals who "trust in the Lord with all thine heart," will "exalt a nation." It is not enough to put better food in peoples' stomachs, better clothes on their bodies, better roofs over their heads. These are essential as expressing the better life; but you have got to give people something to live for as well as something to live on.

Good business depends upon good business men. Good international relations depend upon good nations. Good race relations depend upon good races.

We have been greatly enheartened by the establishment of United Nations as a world idea and ideal. Will it succeed? The answer is found not in dollars and bullets, but in hearts that always "trust in the Lord."

"Except the Lord build the house,
They labor in vain that build it;
Except the Lord keep the city,
The watchman waketh but in vain."
—Psalm 127:1

Guy: "When you stay after class with the professor, what do you do—study history?"

Cal: "Nope, make it."

ant. Use the right ingredients and follow directions exactly. Always store pickles sealed airtight in a cool dry, dark place.

Good clear, standard vinegar free from sediment and with 4 to 6 percent of acetic should be used. This is stronger than the vinegar of 15 to 20 years ago so the old recipes will not give as good results because of the ingredients added to prevent lumping.

Use whole spices for most cooked pickles because they keep flavor longer. They can be tied in a cloth to cook with other ingredients and then lifted out before the pickles are packed. Spices packed with pickles will turn them dark. When using a spice bag, use a clean, thin white cloth large enough so juices can circulate through the spices and draw out the flavor.

For cooked pickles, use kettles of enamelware, aluminum or stainless steel. Don't use copper or galvanized containers. Don't use jars with zinc lids or metal lids with self-sealing compounds.

For further directions and recipes for successful pickles, obtain a copy of U. S. Department of Agriculture folder AWI-103, "Pickle and Relish Recipes"; from your county extension office or from the Bulletin office, Department of Public Relations, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

LOOKING BACKWARD

From the Herald Files of Forty, Thirty and Twenty Years Ago
Compiled by Mrs. Mabel Secord

September 14, 1907

From Wilson items: "Miss Eva Mackey began teaching in Afton last Monday." "Miss Mabian Cliffe has been engaged to teach the Bills school this season." "The Misses Glennie Vrondran, Agnes Shepard and Gladys Hudkins are attending High School in East Jordan at present."

(From the Boyne Journal: "The Steamer R. J. Gordon is expected home in a day or two with a full cargo of hard coal. She will take 400,000 brick to East Jordan to start building the Chemical plant there for Messrs. Shaw and Matthews of this City.")

A list of marriages licenses issued at Charlevoix include those of Arthur Moon and Miss Kate Adams of East Jordan who were married at Charlevoix Saturday; Ezra Moore, East Jordan to Lillian Bodenhoff, Milwaukee; and Nels G. Bergstrom, Leelanaw County, to Anna Lafreniere, St. James. Nels worked in the mill at Deward and was one of a of about six or eight young fellows who were always together. Nels and Anna shipped their furniture on ahead and the other boys promptly removed it from the freight car to the cottage Nels had rented, but they also completely filled the kitchen with firewood.

John Shapton, villiage president and for the last 18 years an employe of the East Jordan Lumber Co. (a part of the time as Supt. of logging) leaves next week for Aberdeen, Wash. in company with Blaine Harrington, Mr. Gurad and family and Fred Korthase and family.

A party of N. Y. Central surveyors were here the first of the week, platting for a spur of the D. & C. R. R. to run through the cooperage and flooring plant propertities and thence around to the site of the new iron furnace.

Mrs. Mose Lalonde, aged 72, a resident here since 1867, died at her home Friday morning.

Mrs. Fritz (Dorothy) Bauman was killed Thursday evening. She and her husband were driving into town with a team and a light surrey. Just east of Brown's creek they were met by a large team hitched to a lumber wagon and driven by two men who had been drinking. They were running the horses which reared and came down on the surrey's right side, crushing Mrs. Bauman so badly that she died soon after being carried to Robert Atkinson home. The men, Clarence Tucker and Charles Moore, tried to escape but men who had gathered at the scene prevented them from leaving. Marshal Johnson put them in the jail to await developments.

Stephen Shepard's wheat crop has threshed out more than 45 bushels per acre.

Peter Dufore, aged 74, well-known resident of South Arm township, died at the County Farm September 13th, Burial was at Ellsworth.

Governor Kim Sigler is a very suspicious individual. His attitude comes naturally as the result of his grand jury experience.

The case at hand is his personal investigation into gambling clubs at Northern Michigan resorts.

At the beginning of the 1947 tourist season, Governor Sigler warned all law enforcement agencies that gambling was not to be tolerated in resort areas or elsewhere. No slot machines, no roulette wheels, no dice games, and no gambling other than legalized betting on horse racing at Detroit and Northville. With a tough ex-prosecuting attorney in the state executive offices, Michigan was to remain a no-man's land for organized gambling.

In other years a certain amount of under-cover gambling was tolerated at North Michigan resort towns. The idea was usually this: The "suckers" are well-to-do visitors from other states. If they want to gamble, it was their money to throw away. Local citizens were not admitted; hence local merchants never had a chance to complain about non-payment of bills. Some times the local prosecutor was induced to serve as attorney for the resort business in handling legal affairs. The tourist season was short and the hotels had to meet expenses, etc. Why not let some Chicago tourist contribute needed revenue, etc.?

The Michigan season opened this year, as usual, about the Fourth of July. State Police and state liquor control commission investigators promptly made their check-ups on places which opened in other years, off and on. No signs of activity could be detected.

Late in July, however, reports spread that gamblers were opening up, quietly of course, to a few selected customers. Attempts of police and investigators to gain entrance were not successful. One hotel required credentials that the person was from out of state; that he had $500 in bills on his person as evidence that he could afford to lose.

Reservations were received by the hotel from a Wisconsin business man for a week in August. When he arrived, he proved his credentials. He displayed money. And finally he succeeded in getting inside the casino where he played games and obtained first-hand evidence. The place was then "knocked over" by State Police.

However, the raid (and there were several others) all occurred in August. Critics implied to the governor that the raids were a mere formality, "token raids" in fact to be made when the season was about over and big profits had been harvested. The governor smarted. He was furious. He ordered two former ace grand jury investigators to investigate. And whom are they to investigate? Well, State Police and State Liquor Control Commission investigators!

Gambling has been winked at, under certain circumstances, by some governors of Michigan. We recall when we spent a week-end at a Michigan resort hotel at which the governor was a guest. A friend invited us to see the hotel casino. We had never seen a gambling joint, and being a newspaperman, we accepted more out of curiosity than a desire to gamble. In the casino was the secretary of the governor and several members of his staff. The next day: The governor requested the prosecuting attorney to investigate "reports" of gambling.

No, we don't blame Governor Sigler for being a suspicious man. He evidently dosn't know whom to trust. But we do hope that his report on the State Police and Liquor Control investigators will be widely publicized. At present he has put these agencies under public suspicion.

India a Patchwork of British and Indian States

There are two main divisions in India, notes the National Geographic Society. Surrounded by and interlaced with the British provinces are 562 prince-ruled states. Their combined area amounts to more than two-fifths of the whole peninsula. Their population is nearly 100,000,000, an estimated quarter of the inhabitants of this densely settled subcontinent.

The Indian states vary in size, wealth, development, and culture. The rulers, however, all have an abundance of titles — Highness, Raja, Maharaja, Nawab, and Nizam, along with plain Colonel and Flight Lieutenant, and "Faithful Ally of the British Government."

The smallest domains have less territory than a middle-sized cattle ranch. The largest, Hyderabad, is twice the size of Ohio and has more than 16,000,000 subjects. Moslems and Hindus are intermingled, as in the rest of India. Predominantly Moslem Kashmir has a Hindu ruler. Hyderabad, which is overwhelmingly Hindu, is under a Moslem, "His Exalted Highness," reputed to be the richest man in the world.

Among the individual princes and sub-princes are ascetics and scholars, as well as sportsmen who own stables of race horses, luxurious palaces, and jewels worth millions of dollars. One maharaja is said to own more than 200 automobiles. Many have their own private trains and airplanes.

Undernourished Suffer Fewer Caries Than Well-Fed

Undernourished persons suffering from pellagra, scurvy and other nutritional deficiency diseases tend to have less tooth decay than persons who eat average American diets, four research scientists reported in the Journal of the American Dental Association.

The researchers—Drs. Arvin W. Mann and Samuel Dreizen, dentists, Dr. Tom D. Spies, physician, and Floy Martin Hunt, all of Birmingham, Ala.—made detailed studies of dental defects among 124 patients at Hillman hospital, Birmingham. The results were compared with similar studies made of a control group of 99 persons who exhibited no clinical evidence of malnutrition.

They reported that the group of 124 persons, all of whom showed definite clinical evidence of nutritional deficiencies, had less than one-third the amount of dental caries (decay) experience than that found in the well-fed group. The average number of decayed, missing and filled teeth recorded for the 124 sufferers of nutritional deficiency diseases was reported at 4.54 per person, compared with an average rate of 14.94 for the control group. The undernourished were much more susceptible to pyorrhea, however.

"Cooling" Kitchen

Overly-hot kitchens can be "color-cooled" by use of the correct paint shades, comments a Canadian color authority. A cool color combination which would be attractive in the kitchen might have the ceiling a pale buff with a trace of green added, sea green on the upper walls and a slightly grayed green on the lower walls. The green can be grayed by adding a trace (just a trace) of red to the paint. Another color-cooled kitchen could have a ceiling of oyster white, upper walls of pale gray, lower walls of a slightly deeper gray and woodwork of grayed cream. To avoid a "dead" effect in such a room, a floor of blue and gray linoleum, curtains edged in maroon and furniture in bright blue with maroon trim is recommended.

Dry Out Vegetables

Root vegetables, such as carrots, turnips, beets and radishes will be fresher and have more nutritive value if their leaves or tops are trimmed off before they are stored in home refrigerators. The tops draw moisture and nutrients from the vegetable, as well as take up a lot of space in storage containers. While the vegetable is growing, the leaves manufacture sugar, starch, protein and other nutrients and pass them on down to the roots for storage. But when the vegetable is harvested, the process works the other way as the leaves draw on the roots for moisture and nourishment to keep alive. Vegetables will keep a lot better in the refrigerator than in an open vegetable bin. Warm air of the kitchen will soon cause the products to dry and wilt.

Mighty Atom

Atoms are so small that it takes 100,000,000 of them laid side by side, to extend over a linear inch. Nuclei are so much smaller yet, that it would take 100,000 of them to span the diameter of an atom. Neutrons and protons inside the atom have properties in common with the earth: they rotate on an axis and they are magnets. These tiny bodies circle and spin, and make collisions with each other of which the consequences are described by physicists as closely as though they had before them the report of a traffic accident. These descriptions defy the old notion of the solidity of solid matter and the deadness of dead weight.

AVOID THE PONIES

"All right, children, here's the next problem," the teacher announced. "If one horse can run a mile in a minute and a half and another is able to do the same distance in two minutes, how far ahead would the first horse be if the two horses ran a race of two miles at their respective speeds?"

When the time allowed for solving the problem had expired, all the children except little Johnny Burkett had finished. Johnnie was still hard at work with pencil and paper.

"Johnnie," called out the lynx-eyed instructor, "I'll call on you first for the answer."

Startled by the interruption, the youngster stared blankly at the teacher. Suddenly he had an inspiration.

"Miss Hawkins," he announced, "I'm sorry, but I can't tell you. My dad told me never to have anything to do with horse-racing!"

THE WAY IT LOOKS

Driver's License Examiner — Do you know what it means if a driver puts out a hand?

Applicant—Well, if it's a woman, it means she is going to turn right or left, shake the ashes off her cigaret, or reverse or stop, or she's pointing to a hat store, or admiring her ring, or—

Examiner—Yeah, and if it's a man?

Applicant—Why he's usually waving at a woman.

Round Trip

A tourist, traveling through western Kansas, saw a man sitting by the ruins of a house that had been blown away, and stopped to ask:

"Was this your house, my friend?"

"Yep."

"Any of your family blown away with the house?"

"Yep, wife and four kids."

"Great scott, man, why aren't you hunting for them?"

"Well, stranger, I've been in this country quite a spell. The wind's due to change this afternoon. So I figure I might as well wait here till it brings 'em back."

Over-Paid

An out-of-towner stopped a newsboy saying, "See here, son, I want to find the First National bank. I'll give you a half a dollar if you will direct me to it."

"All right, come along," and led the man to a building half a block away. The man paid the promised fee, remarking, however, "That was half a dollar easily earned."

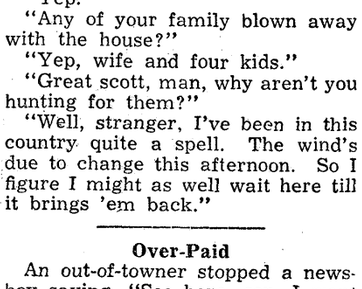

"Sure!" responded the lad, "but you mustn't forgit that bank directors are paid high in this town."

Another Viewpoint

A Sunday School teacher was showing her class a picture of the Christian martyrs in a den of lions. One little boy seemed very sad about it.

"Gee," he exclaimed, "look at that poor lion away in the back. He won't get any!"

SNATCH VICTIM

Jones, a good family man, had been inveigled into a poker game, and experienced growing apprehension as the hand of the clock moved relentlessly on toward morning. Finally, at 3 a.m. he had a sudden inspiration. He called his home and when finally, the little woman answered the phone, he shouted in frenzied haste, "Don't pay the ransom; I'm back!"

Best of Luck

Brown—I haven't seen you for years, old man. Where have you been?

Smith—Hunting tigers, old chap.

Brown—Had any luck?

Smith—Rather! I didn't meet one.

A Good Try

Mike—'Tis a fine kid you have there. A magnificent head and noble carriage. Say, could you lend me a couple of dollars?

Pat—I could not. 'Tis my wife's child by her first husband.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Yes, I'm Guilty!

Folks sometimes criticize us small-town editors for the way we often play up "little things" ahead of big . . . human, local news in place of world events.

I can't deny it. Read the Clarion and you'll learn about the Martins' golden wedding anniversary . . . about the community sing down by the river . . . the husking bee at Sober Hoskins', where neighbors helped husk the corn, and later drank sparkling beer together.

"Little things?" Maybe. But from where I sit, they add up to the bigger things we call America: The friendliness of small towns . . . the helping hand . . . the respect for one another's rights. And above all the love of fellowship and freedom—whether it's freedom to speak one's mind or choose between a glass of beer or buttermilk.

I figure that if everybody looks after the "little things," maybe the bigger things will take care of themselves.
